Weekend accidents claim four lives

by Brian R. Ball
staff reporter

Four Wood County residents were killed in two separate accidents last weekend, two in a car-train accident and two in a single-car accident.

A car-train collision early Friday killed a Bowling Green woman and a Portage man. Mari Stetter, 19, of 18330 Brim Road #114, Bowling Green, the driver, and Jeffrey Allen, 26, of 12703 Merrill Road, Portage, a front seat passenger, were killed at the Main Street crossing in North Baltimore when a train traveling on the Baltimore and Ohio tracks hit their car.

A trooper from the Walbridge post of the Ohio State Patrol said witnesses reported the car stopped on the tracks about 7 a.m. despite the train's whistle and the crossbuck flashers.

It has not been determined why the car stalled on the tracks, state Trooper Robert Skelding said.

The patrol is still investigating minor details of the accident, he said.

THE SECOND accident happened early Sunday morning two miles north of Bowling Green. The one-car accident killed the car's driver, Thomas Carnicom Jr., 19, of 18330 Brim Road #25, Bowling Green, and the front-seat passenger, Craig A. Miller, 21, of 18330 Brim Road #10, Bowling Green. No one else was in the car.

The 1977 Caprice Classic was west-bound on Union Hill Road about one-quarter mile east of Brim Road at about 2:30 a.m. when, according to the county sheriff department's accident report, Carnicom apparently lost control of the vehicle on a straight section of the road. The car slid off the right side of the road and, after getting back on the road, skidded about 90 feet off of the left side of the road. After traveling across the driveway and yard of a residence on Union Hill Road, the car became airborne and crashed into a tree on the west side of the driveway.

Both men were trapped inside the heavily damaged car. The Bowling Green fire department EMS unit responded, although police officials said both were dead at the scene.

The report stated the road was wet at the time of the accident, although no adverse weather conditions were reported. Failure to control was the only contributing factor cited on the sheriff's report.

Wood County Sheriff George Ginter said yesterday he doesn't believe there was a connection between the two accidents and said it was coincidental that Stetter, the driver in Friday's accident, lived in the same trailer park north of Bowling Green where Carnicom and Miller lived.

Human remains located

NASA not sure parts belong to shuttle crew

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) - Pathologists are examining human remains recovered from the Atlantic to see if they are those of Challenger's astronauts, sources said yesterday.

NASA said yesterday that it has recovered no shuttle debris so far from the ocean bottom despite six days of searching with sonar and robot submarines. Two promising "targets," the space agency said, turned out to be the old wreckage of a helicopter and a light airplane.

That left 17 other potential targets about 15 miles offshore where photographs and radar indicated that large objects hit the water, NASA said.

But with the sea yielding less debris each day, officials weighed cutting back on the search of the ocean surface. The Navy was pulling its ships out at the end of the day yesterday, leaving the sea sweep to the Coast Guard, which also was reviewing whether to continue.

THE SOURCES, who spoke on condition they not be identified, would not disclose how many remains had been found or what they were but said they had been taken to a hospital at nearby Patrick Air Force Base to be preserved and studied.

Seven astronauts died in the space shuttle's explosion a week ago, and parts of the shuttle have been found as far away as 220 miles north of Kennedy Space Center.

Reagan prepares address

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan prepared yesterday to give a State of the Union address seeking to overhaul welfare, protect people against catastrophic health costs and improve the international monetary system.

The major radio and television networks plan to carry the half-hour speech live tonight beginning at 8 p.m. EST. The address was delayed a week because of the explosion of the shuttle Challenger.

In the speech, described by aides as an effort to "redefine the role of government" for the rest of the century, Reagan is expected to call for year-long studies leading to formal proposals to revise federal programs for the needy and initiate policies to deal with currency fluctuations and the costs of catastrophic illness.

Two officials who agreed to discuss the administration plans said the studies would be modeled after the Treasury Department's analysis of the income tax system, which Reagan called for in his 1984 State of the Union address and which led to his proposal to overhaul the tax system.

These White House officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan's fifth report to Congress on the state of the nation would emphasize his concern for the American family.

RATHER THAN calling for national sacrifice to meet the stringent spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law, the sources said, Reagan will explain the necessary budget cuts in terms of public versus private priorities.

Ohio budget faces federal cuts

COLUMBUS (AP) - State fiscal planners said yesterday that Ohio faces the immediate loss of $30 million in federal funds as a result of the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law - funds that already are a part of the state's two-year budget.

But Gov. Richard Celeste's budget director, William Shkurti, said hundreds of millions more will be lost to Ohio unless Congress acts to modify provisions of the budget-balancing measure.

His $30 million projection applies to the second half of the current federal fiscal year - from April 1 through Sept. 30.

THE CUTS are 4.3 percent of what the state would have received throughout the federal fiscal year that began Oct. 1, Shkurti said.

He said the $30 million does not include cuts in congressional spending authorization, such as federal revenue-sharing with local communities, or the Medicaid program which Gramm-Rudman exempted from the first year.

Ohio's overall $32.3 billion budget, for the biennium ending June 30, 1987, includes $3.6 billion for Medicaid, 58 percent of which is federal funds.

The director said "the real impact" could come in the next federal fiscal year when the cuts, if allowed to trigger, will be much deeper. He said he has not seen specific calculations but understands the second cuts could be four or five times as big as the first.

In Washington yesterday, a study by Fiscal Planning Services, a private group, showed that Ohio, including local governments, could lose $409.47 million if Congress allows Gramm-Rudman's across-the-board cut of $50 billion is implemented Oct. 1.

Biggest among Ohio's first cuts is $4.9 million in a program that provides home heating assistance for low-income families, followed by up to $109 million in federal highway trust funds.

Tremor shakes Bowling Green

Wood County Office Building suffers only damages

by Susan McDonald
staff reporter

Although few people in Bowling Green reportedly felt Friday's earth tremor, cracks in the Wood County Office Building show that the tremor indeed did occur.

The office building was the only one reported to have received damages. This included a crack in a fifth floor electrical room which runs the length of the building's inside wall.

Other damages include a one-half inch drop between the floor and the wall in the first floor men's restroom, cracked marble in the front entrance way, damage to the Law Library ceiling, cracks and fallen plaster in the sheriff's entry to the parking garage and damage to tiles in front of several parking garage spaces.

Other cracks were reported in the wall seams of the kitchen, the round seam in the court room ceiling, and restrooms on the first, second and fourth floors.

County Commissioner Alvin Perkins said the cost of the damage will not be estimated until the reports have been reviewed and all of the damage is surveyed to see what work has to be done. He said this should take a few weeks.

"It's not going to be an easy job," Perkins said, referring to hiring of the repairmen to match and replace the right ceramic tile.

ALTHOUGH AN estimate is not available, Perkins said the most expensive repair will involve patching the cracks and replacing the tile in the restrooms.

"So far it's the only building where we've seen any damage," he said.

He attributed the tremor's damage to the relative newness of the building compared to other buildings in the city. The Wood County Building is eight years old while most of the city's other buildings are about 90 years old.

Perkins said the older buildings have settled more and therefore, are more stable.

Although approximately 59 separate damages were reported, Perkins said he does not think they are anything to worry about.

"The new building kind of settled out the other day because of the tremor and developed some cracks. I think what the tremor did was to accentuate the cracks that were already there," he said.

No tremor damages to any University buildings have been reported.

Man arraigned on rape charge

by Valerie Ciptak
staff reporter

One of three Toledo men accused of raping and kidnapping a University woman was arraigned Thursday in Wood County Common Pleas Court.

Patrick Henry, 21, formerly of 1740 Macomber St., Toledo, pleaded not guilty to five counts of rape and one count of kidnapping. Bond was set at $25,000 for each count of kidnapping and $10,000 for the one count of kidnapping, totaling $135,000.

Henry did not post bail and remains in Wood County Jail.

A jury trial has been set for March 26 before Judge Donald DeCessna.

ANOTHER MAN, Troy Hill, 19, formerly of 1375 Grand St., will be arraigned after he is appointed counsel. He is in Wood County Jail.

Hill, Henry and a third man, Lamont Walker, 20, of 1634 Vance St., were indicted November 7 for the rape and kidnapping of a University woman October 26. Walker, apprehended by police a few days later, was placed in Wood County Jail and faces trial February 11.

Hill and Henry escaped authorities after a high speed car chase the night of the alleged rape. The FBI joined in the search for Henry and Hill when local authorities had reason to believe they had fled the state.

Both men were found and arrested January 17 in Birmingham, Alabama.

The woman reported to police that she was abducted near campus and repeatedly raped in a car which was driven possibly as far as Toledo. She was dropped off three hours later on Wooster Street where she located a University officer.

The grand jury that indicted the three men returned a no bill to a fourth man, Floyd Boatman, 19, indicating that there was insufficient evidence to convict.

Honoring the explorers

In the wake of the explosion which destroyed the space shuttle Challenger and its seven crew members, the need for some kind of memorial to the dead astronauts has been pointed out.

One proposal which has attracted much attention, media and otherwise, is to name seven of the ten newly-discovered moons of the planet Uranus after the Challenger seven. The remaining three moons would be named after the three astronauts who died when the Apollo 1 spacecraft caught fire on the launch pad in 1967.

While we're in no way against commemorating these individuals or their achievements, this idea is inappropriate for two reasons.

The moons don't belong to the United States. Granted, it was American technology in the form of the Voyager spacecraft which discovered them, but the moons no more belong to the United States than the Eiffel Tower belongs to the American tourist who snaps its picture with his Instamatic.

Secondly, a more fitting memorial would be one which people can see and identify with. Uranus, let alone its moons, can't even be seen by the naked eye from Earth most of the time, even when people know where to look for it. The Challenger and Apollo 1 astronauts died in service of their country and should be honored as such, not by having their names hung in the sky like those of ancient gods. And the Apollo astronauts' memorial exists in the six lunar lander descent stages which sit on the surface of the moon.

The Uranus moons are dead things, and the memorial to the Challenger seven should signify the outward quest in which they participated. Trust funds for the education of the children of the Challenger crew are being assembled. That's a fitting memorial, but it is in the human nature to want something concrete by which to remember. Some school children want to collect money for the construction of a new shuttle, and this suggests an idea.

If the new shuttle is built - there are enough spare parts on hand to begin - then a fitting name for it would be Challenger 2.

NCAA rule: athletes buckle down

Higher test standards mean future college athletes must study harder

by Jeff Stone

Amidst the National Collegiate Athletic Association's world of rules, bylaws and legal jargon, there have been two words recognizable to most of the American public: Proposition 48, the much-contested rule that would help eliminate two more common words: Dumb jock.

Now, Proposition 48 has finally found its way into the NCAA rules manual after three years of extensive debate, and, though its name will change, the song basically remains the same. At the recent NCAA Convention, core curricula, grade point averages, and, yes, standardized test scores were adopted as measures of eligibility for incoming freshmen student-athletes.

The core curriculum of English, math, social science and natural science was acceptable to all. It's hard to argue against reading, writing and arithmetic. The minimum 2.0 grade point average was also understandable and easy to live with. Unfortunately, incorporating test scores (minimum of 700 on the S.A.T. or 15 on the ACT) into the requirements was no walk in the park.

Since 1983, we have heard pros and cons. Members of the NCAA's President's Commission strongly endorsed the proposal. Presidents of black colleges responded very negatively naming discrimination against black athletes. The research does reveal racial bias in the standardized tests; blacks, on the average, score lower.

But something had to be done. Reform does not take place when debates linger on for months or even years. Finally, the voting of approximately 300 delegates passed the standards by an overwhelming margin. It seems that the vast majority of those involved in college athletics feel a change is being made for the betterment of all involved. Let's hope so.

My biggest concern is the lack of knowledge surrounding the new rules. Newspapers, magazines, journals and radio and television programs have given vague accounts of the legislation. I would expect that athletic administrators in many universities are hoping for an explanation. I am sure that a great number of high school athletes and parents are grasping for details and they are probably the ones most affected. Why have all of those coaches stopped recruiting Junior?

Further clouding of the issue is being generated by Joseph Johnson, president of Grambling State University and an outspoken opponent of the new rules. He has promised a legal challenge and expects that court action will take place before August when the new standards go into effect.

Johnson also compared the rules to apartheid in South Africa and promised a "hit list" of schools who voted for use of the test scores. Johnson's criticisms are well-founded but I expect that emotions were running high when the statements were issued.

I'm not saying that the rules are perfectly legitimate. But, at this point, making references to South Africa and a "hit list" seem somewhat extreme. After all, colleges such as Oklahoma, North Carolina, Michigan, Duke, Notre Dame, Nebraska, Penn State, Indiana and on and on voted against dropping the use of testing. These are the top athletic programs in the country and, hit list or not, the best athletes, black or white, are not going to ignore scholarships to these schools.

For now (and maybe forever), these are the rules. Controversy aside, it is time to spread the word to all high school athletes. Tell them what they have to do, advise them and remind them that there are no exceptions.

Here are two more common words directed at prospective student-athletes: Study hard.

Little things in life

by Karl Smith

The United States, and most of the world, seem to subscribe to the "bigger is better" theory.

But the shortest month of the year is upon us and the time has come to recognize the not-so-big people, places and things that are better:

February: The month itself has many great attributes. Even though it is nestled in the midst of winter, it is short, so that those of us who dislike the snow and cold only have to tolerate 28 days, opposed to the 30 or 31 of other months.

Another great thing about February is Groundhog's Day. There is nothing better than a frivolous holiday that annually gains national media attention even though it has no real news value whatsoever.

Snyder's BBQ Potato Chips: Ruffles have ridges and you can't eat just one Lays, but Snyder's BBQ chips are the Cadillac of Barbecue.

Independent television stations: They don't reach the audience of the Big Three, but they have all the classic shows of yesteryear. Independent stations give us a break from "Punky Brewster" with immortal episodes from "Star Trek" and "Gilligan's Island."

Spud Webb: The 5-6 guard of the Atlanta Hawks tangles with the giants of the National Basketball Association every night. In a sport not designed for the small of stature, Webb stands tall.

RC Cola: Dwarfed by Coca-Cola and Pepsi, Royal Crown (RC) Cola remains one of my favorites. Sometimes it's hard to find, but for those who are tired of being in the Pepsi Generation or the few who just don't think Coke is it, yet don't want cheap imitations, RC is worth the search.

Mallo Cups: Far and away the most underrated candy on the market but no one ever seems to get past Snickers and M&M's. Those people don't know what they're missing.

WFAL: The campus radio station, although it can only be heard in the dorms, provides a pleasant break from WIOT's blaring selection and WRQN's bubble-gum rotation.

Michael J. Fox: The impish actor is proof positive that male screen stars don't have to be hulks like Sly Stallone to succeed. His weekly performance in "Family Ties" also gives us a break from shows like "Punky Brewster."

Rhode Island: No list would be complete without the smallest state. The best feature of Rhode Island is that the NCAA hockey tournament will be held there this spring - and Bowling Green could be represented.

Liechtenstein: What a great country. It's rarely in the news, it doesn't cause trouble and it isn't involved in the arms race. That's my kind of country.

Carl's Jr. Hamburgers: It's a shame that this hamburger chain isn't established in Ohio (I've only seen them in California), because it's a great alternative to McDonald's and Burger King. Instead of imposing names like Big Mac and Whopper, you can order a Happy Star or an Old-Fashioned Star.

The big lighted sign outside every restaurant boasts a big yellow star wearing a beaming smile through thick and thin.

We need more things like that. Smith, a junior journalism major from Walton Hills, is assistant managing editor of The News.

Celestial memorial

We, as so many, have felt the tragic loss of the space shuttle Challenger's crew. We feel it would be a fitting gesture to name seven of the newly-discovered satellites of Uranus in honor of these valiant people: Francis Scobee, Michael Smith, Ronald McNair, Ellison Onizuka, Judith Resnik, Gregory Jarvis and Christa McAuliffe. Also, since there appears to be at least three other satellites, we feel that these should be named after the three astronauts, Virgil Grissom, Edward White and Roger Chaffee, who died in the fire aboard Apollo 1.

We beg you to urge your audience to support this concept and ask them to show their support for this idea by writing their Congressperson or the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. Thank you.

Bill Biegala
Steve McKenzie

Editor's note: The naming of celestial objects does not rest with the United States or its space program. All such names must be approved by the international scientific community.

Response to Schmidt

In one week David Schmidt managed to criticize two of the best things that we as a nation have to be proud of: the men and women in the United States Armed Services and the brave men and women in America's space program.

Without the military, we, as a nation of free people, would cease to exist. Schmidt's sophomoric criticism of the men who fought in Grenada (Jan. 28) was not only unwarranted but was based on a distortion of the facts. The people of Grenada wanted the Americans to rescue them from the newly-established communist government, and there were Americans trapped on Grenada who were justifiably terrified of what might happen to them. It was on these premises that Grenada was invaded by American troops. If the invasion of Grenada appalls Schmidt, perhaps he should go to Afghanistan to view the Soviet military in action.

The second, and more unforgivable, of Schmidt's ramblings was his cruel, heartless assault on the explosion of the space shuttle. It takes a special kind of person to try to trivialize the deaths of seven people in service to their country as Schmidt did. Hopefully, the rest of us realize how terrible this event is for the families of those killed and we can give them the sympathy they deserve. Bill Melden deserves to be commended for his heartfelt epitaph to these brave people.

Assumptions faulty

In the wake of the space shuttle tragedy of Jan. 28, the words of David H. Schmidt (Jan. 31) ring with abrasiveness and pomposity. Beyond this merely emotional reaction, however, his writing is marred by faulty assumptions and misdirected thinking. It is surprising to see such fallacies being committed by a philosophy student. Indeed, Schmidt seems more eager to display his erudition than to present a legitimate argument.

Granted, his parallel between the Bogota disaster and the shuttle explosion seems to make a timely and valid point: too often we let ourselves become numb to the news of death and assume that it can only surface elsewhere. When it hits home we are suddenly forced to deal with the reality of its presence - as if our seeming immunity to it had been broken.

Yet Schmidt states that the space program is merely our answer to "boredom and anxiety" and he proceeds to charge the United States, and mankind in general, with the crime of anthropocentrism.

Despite the apparent breadth of his reading list, Mr. Schmidt seems to have developed a rather narrow viewpoint. Evidently he's forgotten that when Voltaire wrote, "... this is the best of all possible worlds ..." through the character of Pangloss in Candide, he intended to echo, and parody, the extreme optimism of the rationalistic philosopher Leibniz. Voltaire doubted that this is "the best of all possible worlds," but as a great thinker he cared enough about his world to ponder it and explore alternative viewpoints.

The creativity and inquisitiveness exhibited by Voltaire and by countless others throughout history have propelled our race to the point where it is now - not a pinnacle of perfection, to be sure, but at least a point from which we can move forward. Yet it is precisely this human yearning for exploration which Schmidt sees as the great fault of our race.

In his haste to indict the space program as being nothing more than a superfluous toy, Schmidt displays a stunning inability for logical thought. He writes, "... if it is space that we are really interested in, I suggest everybody pick up a copy of Cosmos ..." Does Schmidt realize that Carl Sagan would have had to write a much slimmer volume if it wasn't for the data gathered by previous space missions?

Perhaps Schmidt should consult a logic text before he attempts to set his impassioned thoughts to the page again. More importantly, however, if he really "revelled" in the deaths of seven human beings because it confirmed his assessment of our race as one of "stupid freaks" then I suggest he abandon his books and take a serious look at himself.

Kucinich announces running mate

by Geoffrey Barnard
editor

TOLEDO - Independent candidate for governor Dennis Kucinich introduced school teacher and political newcomer David Kelley as his running mate yesterday.

He made the announcement at a series of news conferences in Toledo, Cleveland and Columbus.

Though Kelley is relatively unknown, Kucinich said it should not hurt his platform, a campaign he has geared toward the "common folk."

"I've found my name is as well-known in the state as any state official," Kucinich said. "I've found I'm running as well as Celeste in the north."

Aside from being an English teacher for the past eight years, Kelley has also been a financial planner and advises his brother Paul on a financial column published for the Medina Gazette. Kelley, a Democrat, is running as an independent on the ticket.

KUCINICH SAID Kelley was chosen because of his experience in business, his integrity and independent approach to government.

"Professional politicians haven't exactly cornered the market on intelligence, decency and foresight," Kucinich said.

Kucinich, former mayor of Cleveland and former city councilman, originally intended to challenge Gov. Richard Celeste for the Democratic nomination.

He said he chose to run as an independent to offer voters an alternative to Celeste or former Gov. James Rhodes.

"It was my 541-mile walk across the state that convinced me that the people want something so dramatically different that they are ready to accept an independent candidate," he said. "People no longer need political machines to do their thinking."

Kucinich said he considers his chances of winning very real, even though the campaigns of Celeste and Rhodes are more heavily financed and apparently have party backing.

"WHY WOULD someone pay $10 million to win a job that pays $70,000? It amounts to someone putting a 'for sale' sign on their back," he said. "I'm not concerned about money. I can't be bought. I'm not for sale."

"Ultimately, I think its going to be a two-person race - myself and former Governor Rhodes."

Rhodes is vying for the Republican Party nomination along with state Sens. Paul Gillmor and Paul Pfeifer.

Kucinich said he wouldn't seek endorsements. Kelley agreed endorsements would not be critical to the campaign.

"We saw in the last (presidential) election that endorsements are not the key," Kelley said. "Walter Mondale had all sorts of endorsements from labor."

Dennis Kucinich, left, makes a point during the announcement of his running mate in Toledo yesterday. David Kelley, right, will be the ticket's candidate for lieutenant governor. Kucinich made his announcement at the Holiday Inn South at 9 a.m. He repeated the announcement later in the day in Cleveland and Columbus.

Six new representatives were sworn in to the Undergraduate Student Government at a meeting last night.

The six replaced representatives who resigned at the beginning of the semester because of conflicts between classes and meetings.

The new representatives are: John Fox and Jack Thomas, off-campus; Mark Sivy and Michael Hoffman, at-large; Scott Lameier, district three; and Barry Wurgler, district four.

Michael McGreevey, USG president, said the representatives were chosen out of 26 applicants by a committee consisting of himself and six other USG members.

The new members attended a USG retreat Sunday, McGreevey said.

"The retreat is held once each semester to get in depth on issues and incorporate new members," McGreevey said.

Steve Russell, student welfare coordinator, said Phone Power Hour, a program designed to reach the constituents and get feedback on issues currently being addressed by USG, will go into affect this week.

Members will call 10 students weekly during their office hours, Russell said. USG hopes to reach between 400 to 500 students a week.

Kristin Romaine, public relations coordinator, said yesterday began "USG Awareness week, which is designed to let students know that USG is here and students have a voice in what goes on in the University."

Tax advice

Jolene Parker, a graduate assistant in the music department, chats with Dr. Joseph Katzner following a meeting in Kobacker Auditorium Friday. The graduate assistants are trying to pre-empt the return of a tax on their fee waivers, and received advice from University officials at the meeting.

'85 contracts free of taxes

by Dave Harding
chief copyeditor

The University has decided not to withhold fee waiver taxes from graduate assistants who signed a contract before the end of last year.

At a meeting Friday with graduate students, University President Paul Olscamp said, "If a graduate student entered in a contract before January 1, 1986, then our counsel has advised us that there does not have to be any withholding while the contract is in effect."

However, Olscamp added that if a contract was signed this year the University had no choice but to withhold taxes beginning with the March 20 paycheck.

David Anderson, president of the Graduate Student Senate, said only 11 graduate assistants had signed contracts with the University during 1986 and four of those had already arranged not to have their taxes withheld due to the nature of their assistantships.

Anderson said there was a legitimate concern raised as to whether or not graduate students would be liable if the University's attorneys were proven wrong.

"That's a possibility but it's not really a major concern because there are too many 'ifs' involved," Anderson said.

Anderson added, for example, that if the IRS finds fault with the University's attorneys, a problem could exist.

WITH THE University's decision not to withhold taxes, graduate students are now concerned with Congress passing Senate Bill 558. If Congress fails to pass the bill, graduate students taxes will be withheld from their fee waivers. The bill would reinstate a previous tax exemption on graduate fee waivers.

Steve Fogler, graduate assistant in philosophy, said graduate students were cautiously optimistic that the bill would pass.

"We are going to have to watch and see how things turn out in Washington," he said. "If the legislature doesn't pass the bill, then we may have to see if we can have our contracts reworded or if some other action can be taken to help us."

Although the Senate Bill has yet to be passed, graduate students were pleased with the University's decision.

"We were all feeling the tension of this tax issue and it was a little difficult to concentrate on studying but now everything is pretty much back to normal," Fogler said.

Fair addresses housing issues of BG students

by Melissa McGillivray
staff reporter

Leases, landlords and security deposits may be unfamiliar to students living in a dorm, but these words take on new meaning for students looking for off-campus housing.

The Off-Campus Housing Fair, being held from 7 to 9 p.m. tonight in the Lenhart Grand Ballroom, is designed to help students who are confused about off-campus living, said Tonia Stewart, director of Off-Campus Housing.

The event is being co-sponsored by Stewart's office, the Student Consumer Union and Student Legal Services.

The fair will feature representatives from the three groups as well as landlords and managers of apartment complexes who will discuss student problems and questions, Stewart said.

"What we're trying to do is get the student out to meet these people face to face and give them a sense of community involvement in where they're going to be living," Stewart said.

Over 1,000 students attended the fair last year, she said.

There will be 15 to 18 different landlords at the fair, so students will have a variety of rental agencies to choose from, she said.

"It gives the student a chance to do some comparison shopping," she said.

Stewart said her office has compiled an information booklet for the fair that will be available to students.

THE BOOKLET, titled "Home Sweet Home," includes information about leases and security deposits, and a listing of tenants' rights.

It also features a history of Bowling Green, important phone numbers and special tips for students such as ways to budget monthly expenses and protect their homes, she said.

Some landlords will have leases that students may sign at the fair, Stewart said.

"If they do sign a lease there, it is binding," she said. "They will be held responsible for anything they sign."

One type of lease available is designed for student renters.

Jason Gray, chairman of the Student Consumer Union, said the Model Lease, compiled by the Student Consumer Union is used by five of the Bowling Green rental agencies.

"We use it as an educational tool because it informs students what should and shouldn't be in a lease and what to look for," Gray said. "We felt it was necessary to inform the students who may be living off campus of what they may be getting into," he said.

ALSO TO INFORM students, the Student Consumer Union will provide a booklet titled "Guide to Off-Campus Living," which offers information such as how to look for problems with an apartment before moving in so students don't get billed for it later, Gray said.

Gray believes the fair will be helpful to students.

"We encourage all students who either live off campus or plan to move off campus, to attend," he said.

Sandra Scott, attorney for the Student Legal Services, said that students who have legal questions about off-campus living can also talk to a representative from SLS at the fair.

Foundation serves University for more than 17 years

by Julie Wallace
reporter

The Northwest Ohio Educational Technology Foundation is one of Bowling Green's best-kept secrets.

The foundation, by way of WBGU-TV facilities, has been providing instructional television and various educational services to member schools for over 17 years.

"Perceptions of what instructional television is usually are outdated. Education majors in particular need to be aware of all areas of our curriculum. Most think of instructional television as an auditorium or amphitheater with a dozen monitors focused on the lecturer. It is so much more than that," Sally Blair, Director of NWOETF, said.

A non-profit organization funded by the State Department of Educators, NWOETF, founded in 1968, is one of eight ITV stations across Ohio to provide the opportunity for student service.

NWOETF is divided into three divisions: the Computer Resource Center; the Tape Duplicating Center; and the Northwest Ohio Media Center. All three provide member schools with the most up-to-date educational technology available.

"We try to keep our ears to the ground. We listen to what the teachers have to say and act on their comments," Blair said.

THE MOST recent division, the Computer Resource Center, was established in the 1982-83 school year due to a growing number of inquiries by teachers concerning computer technology, she said. The CRC provides technical consultations, discounted software and instructional workshops to assist teachers in developing programs best suited for their classroom needs.

Blair said 95 percent of the teachers responded positively to the idea of a computer service through the Foundation.

"As the number of inquiries increased, we decided to survey the schools and received such an overwhelming response that we met with the Board of Directors who approved the plans for the Center," Blair said.

The Tape Duplication Center provides flexibility to teacher's schedules by sending VCR or Beta videotaped programs to schools at the teacher's request. This flexibility is the major reason the use of the Foundation's services increased by 200 percent after the TDC was formed.

THE FOUNDATION buys the rights to copy tapes for the school's usage. The TDC has 26 VCR machines that run continually during business hours and on the average, 120 tapes are "dubbed," - copied from the master tape to a blank tape, per day.

The third division, The Northwest Ohio Media Center, provides rental of 16mm films to schools. The Center maintains a library of 3,000 films for usage.

The role of the services are to be an aide for classroom teachers, Blair said.

"ITV was not established to replace the teacher; it was established to supplement and enhance the teacher's lessons," she said. "The new State Minimum Standards for school curriculums requires schools to provide so many hours of certain subjects. Many schools use our programs to help fill these requirements."

Additional services provided include school visits, a News 6 special that involves area sixth graders producing their own news program, a monthly newsletter and program guides supplementing televised material.

"Everyone needs to be aware of the technology around us. It is a part of the business world, education world, etc. It's a shame not to take advantage of it and to channel it into educational value," Blair said.

"As we move away from this terrible day, we must devote our energies to finding out how it happened and how it can be prevented from happening again," President Reagan said yesterday in naming a commission to investigate the cause of the catastrophe independently of NASA. The interim NASA board set up to investigate will no longer exist, said White House spokesman Larry Speakes. The board is headed by Jesse Moore, an associate administrator of 300 attend black male conference

by Shelly Trusty
staff reporter

Over 300 people from Ohio and Michigan took part in a conference and workshop on the black American male held here this weekend, according to the Office of Minority Affairs.

The conference, titled "An Affirmation of the Afro-American Male: Myths and Realities," was sponsored by the office of Minority Affairs and the Ohio Department of Human Services. The idea behind the conference was to bring together faculty, administrators, representatives of various government, community and health agencies and students to discuss issues and concerns.

The conference featured the presentation of papers dealing with the problems and challenges of the Afro-American male, an exhibit of Afro-American art, a health booth for hypertension screening and workshops on the Afro-American male.

The Rev. Calvin Butts presented one of the most heavily attended workshops, "What History Tells Us About Us!"

He spoke to an inter-racial audience of about 150 people on the importance of self-respect for the black male and his responsibility to the rest of society.

Butts said it is hard to exist in a majority society and keep your ideals, but the Afro-American male cannot afford to lose his own identity.

"When you begin to respect yourself, to define yourself on your own terms, then your woman will respect you and the society will respect you. When you do what you know you should do, I guarantee that the amount of respect people have for you will increase," Butts said.

HE SPOKE of the loss of identity as "sin and shame."

"The sin is a white woman walking down the street with her lips painted and swinging a purse - the shame is the black woman following in her footsteps. The sin is a white man who believes his woman should be submissive - the shame is the black man who believes this as well," Butts said.

He said the society must work together to better itself. Butts cited examples of black-against-black violence and crime. He said that nobody can destroy a black man better than another black man.

Communication was stressed by Butts as an important weapon against racism and violence in society. He said Afro-Americans must report racial incidences and be willing to speak up against the temptations of the majority society. Most important, Butts said, blacks must communicate with each other in order to solve their problems.

Students disciplined after campus party

A Campus party over the weekend resulted in the referral of several students to Standards and Procedures.

A male student from Akron University was removed from the Florida Fling for using altered identification. The student was reported as being drunk and disorderly, using loud and abusive language towards campus police, and calling attention to the scene.

He was referred to Standards and Procedures at Akron University by Campus police.

Campus police approached another man who was reportedly causing a disturbance, when a friend of the man grabbed the officer's arm and tried to push him away. The man, reportedly intoxicated, told the officer to stay away from his friend.

The man who tried to keep the officer away was cited for disorderly conduct and then referred to Standards and Procedures here.

Council honors former rep

by Zora Johnson
staff reporter

City Council began last night's meeting with a moment of silence honoring the crew of the space shuttle Challenger, but then quickly moved into its agenda, approving several pieces of legislation.

Approved by Council was a resolution honoring Cynthia Henry for her services as First Ward Councilman from February 19, 1985 to December 31, 1985.

Mayor Bruce Bellard presented Henry with a plaque and read a portion of the resolution which stated, "Mrs. Henry worked unselfishly and diligently to further and protect the interests of her constituents during her term of office and performed an invaluable service to the citizens of Bowling Green."

"We are appreciative of the fine job you did, and are happy to have had the chance to work with you," Bellard said.

Also passed was an ordinance authorizing the Utilities Director to advertise the sale of a 2500 KVA Delta-Star transformer, which is no longer needed by the city.

COUNCIL ALSO approved an ordinance which will allow continued funding of a city sewer project near Pearl and South Grove Streets.

In other business, city officials reported on some projects which are moving toward completion.

Bellard reported on the progress made on a 911 emergency phone system which has been proposed for installation in Bowling Green.

Bellard said a 19-member technical advisory committee has met twice to discuss the proposed system.

"The next step will be for a implementation proposal for 911 to be prepared for presentation at a public meeting," Bellard said. "Obviously this will cost money and we don't know where the money will come from but we're not concerned about that right now."

David Barber, director of Public Works, updated the council on progress being made on the Carter Park Water Tower.

"The contractor for the tower will be leaving sometime this week when all of the steel work is finished," Barber said. "He will return when concrete can be poured without having to protect it from frost."

University student finds activities worthy of cheer

by Ron Fritz
assistant sports editor

Although she never made her high school varsity squad, one University student has become a cheerleading fanatic.

Not only is Stephanie Corrado, junior sports management major, in her second year as a Falcon cheerleader, she is also the advisor for Bowling Green High School's varsity and junior varsity basketball cheerleaders.

Since Corrado became the advisor at BGHS on Nov. 22, she has little time away from cheerleading. With two practices and monitoring two games a week as advisor, she also has two games and once-a-week workouts with the Falcons.

"But it's fun," Corrado said. "Both things fit into my schedule and I love doing them. Plus, being busy helps me budget my time. I really wouldn't know what to do with my time if I didn't keep busy."

However, there was a time this year when cheerleading wasn't so fun for Corrado. In fact, she is lucky she's able to walk, let alone cheer.

After the first two football games this season, she broke two vertebrae in her back at practice when she attempted a double flip and landed flat on her back. She was hospitalized for 10 days and unable to cheer the rest of the football season.

"I'll never forget that accident," Corrado said. "I've never been so scared; I didn't know if I was paralyzed or what."

"I was also upset at not being able to go to the California Bowl, and missing the football season."

But Corrado feels the experience has made her a better coach for the high school girls.

"I think it has made me more aware of the risks involved with being a cheerleader," she said. "Luckily in high school, they're not allowed to do mounts."

Being a University cheerleader doesn't hurt when trying to relate to her two squads, either.

"I can relate to them really well," Corrado said. "I'm close to their age, but I feel they still respect me. I hope they see me cheer at BG. I hope it's one of their goals (to cheer in college)."

However, Corrado isn't attempting to make the BGHS cheerleaders imitations of the University cheerleaders.

"No, I'm not trying to make them into Falcon cheerleaders," she said. "I'm just trying to get them to be enthusiastic and to make them sharper. I try to bring in current cheerleading ideas."

BGHS senior Debbie Fernandez, co-captain of the Bobcat cheerleaders, said Corrado is a good advisor.

"She really teaches us a lot," Fernandez said. "Stephanie gets along with everybody and really understands us. She treats us like she would any of her other friends."

In high school, though, cheerleading wasn't Corrado's first priority. She was cut from the cheerleading squad at Upper University cheerleader and Bowling Green High School cheerleading advisor Stephanie Corrado shares a laugh with members of the BGHS junior varsity and varsity squads at practice. The junior sports management major rarely has time to rest during the week with the schedule the high school and University basketball teams keep.

Arlington High School, in Columbus, following her sophomore season. However, Corrado had diving to fall back on.

In fact, Corrado was recruited to come to the University as a diver. But following a rough freshman diving season, she decided to give cheerleading a shot.

"I tried out just for fun," she said. "I never thought I'd make it. One of the toughest things for me was telling the swim coach I was going to cheer."

However, diving has led to other things to keep Corrado busy. She is a part-time lifeguard at the University's Recreation Center and is a diving coach for Bowling Green's youth swim club in the summer.

She hopes to someday be a sports director at a facility such as the Rec center, and also be a swim coach. Looking at all her activities, one thing sticks out — sports.

"I love sports of all kinds," Corrado said. "I think that's why I love cheerleading so much. I really love to be in front of crowds, too. But sports is a part of me."

And next year, you may see her cheering at a Falcons' football game, or advising the high school cheerleaders, maybe diving for the University, possibly coaching diving at BGHS, perhaps lifeguarding at the Rec, or...

Survey: New students lacking skills

by Mike Amburgey
staff reporter

The caliber of incoming freshmen to state universities has decreased during the past few years and education officials are out to reverse the trend.

According to John Martin, director of admissions, a recent survey conducted by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teachers found that many new undergraduates were lacking in academic abilities.

Sixty-three percent of 6,000 college teachers questioned across the nation said standards for undergraduate education are too low. Of the educators surveyed, 84 percent said teaching would be easier if students had a better academic background before entering college.

Lisa Chavers, assistant director of admissions, said the University requires a composite score of 20 on the ACT test and a mark of 910 on the SAT. In addition, four units of high school English, three units each of math, science, and social sciences, two foreign language units, and one unit of the arts, are recommended.

"If a student does not meet all of the high school unit requirements, that factor alone does not mean that the student would not be admitted," she said.

However, Chavers said most incoming freshmen have the minimum score for the ACT or SAT. In addition, students having a GPA of 2.5 or better and graduating in the top half their high school class are representative of a typical entering freshman.

JAMES LITWIN, director of the center for Institutional Studies, said a survey four years ago polled 400 University freshmen on college preparatory classes taken in high school.

"Only about 10 percent of the students we surveyed had completed the required prep courses in high school," Litwin said. "There will probably be quite a shift in this figure soon," Litwin said.

He said new requirements issued by the state for state universities intend to upgrade the quality of academic background for applying freshman. But these new requirements are not mandatory, Litwin said.

Kathy Kart, director of the General Studies Writing program, said that 16.8 percent of incoming freshman in 1985 were placed in English 111, which indicates "some fairly serious writing difficulties."

Broncos turn tables in sweep

by Karl Smith
assistant managing editor

KALAMAZOO, Mich. - When Western Michigan visited Bowling Green for a two-game series last month, Bronco coach Bill Wilkinson said goaltending made the difference in the Falcon sweep.

Last weekend in Lawson Arena was the same story with a new twist, BG ended up on the short end as the Broncos swept the Central Collegiate Hockey Association series - 5-2 Saturday and 7-5 Friday.

Falcon goalie Gary Kruzich sighted his play as a pivotal point in the losses.

"Friday night was just one of those nights where I didn't perform to my ability. The goaltender has to stop the puck," Kruzich said. "We won't win many games when I give up seven goals."

Bill Horn, on the other hand, rebounded from his shoddy performance at BG, according to Wilkinson.

"We shut down their high-powered offense and our goaltender played well, we cleared the puck out of our zone well," he said. "Billy (Horn) kept us together, though, a couple of times. BG had some good chances and whether they mis-handled the puck or Billy made the save, we stopped them."

"If you don't get solid goaltending, you won't be anywhere."

Saturday, Horn got support from Rob Bryden, who netted a hat trick. Bryden scored a power play goal with 8:26 left in the first period and the Broncos never trailed.

Wayne Gagne scored early in the second period and the 2-0 advantage held until 5:58 remained. Falcon sophomore wing Don Barber scored BG's first goal moments after coming in on a line change.

Less than a minute later, Bryden scored on a breakaway and the Broncos took a 3-1 lead into the final period.

"There were times in the second period that our team played well, we had a lot of good chances, but Horn played an outstanding game," BG coach

Jerry York said. "They have some explosive skaters that can break to the open area. They snuck behind us a couple of times and scored some goals."

In addition, the Falcons could capitalize on only one of seven power play opportunities, while the Broncos netted two goals in five tries, the second opening the final period. Troy Thrun netted the goal only two minutes into the third period.

BG's CLARKE Pineo scored 22 seconds later, but Bryden completed his hat trick with 10:18 remaining to ice the victory.

Falcons starting to feel the heat

Karl's Comments

Karl Smith

KALAMAZOO, Mich. - When Bowling Green lost two games to St. Lawrence, most, myself included, wrote off the sweep as unimportant since it was against a non-conference opponent.

After last weekend's sweep at the hands of Western Michigan, however, the Falcons have themselves in a bonafide losing streak. They have lost four in a row and five of their last six.

Everyone has their own theory on why the icers are struggling, but BG goalie Gary Kruzich may have the most accurate.

"We have the most talent in the league, but a hard-working team will beat talent any time," Kruzich said. "We have to see if we have the heart the rest of the season."

The Falcons surely have an abundance of talent at all positions. Kruzich is one of the leagues top goalies and defensemen Todd Flicel, Brian McKee and Scott Paluch are also top-notch.

WHILE THE defense is solid, the offense is more feared. Jamie Wansbrough is just a few goals away from breaking the CCHA record for career goals and Paul Ysebaert, Brian Meharry, Iain Duncan, Don Barber and Greg Parks are over 30 points this year, as is McKee.

The coaching staff is also one of the best in the nation. Jerry York is undisputably a great coach and his assistants are high quality. For that reason, it is foolish to put the blame on strategy or planning. Few people know the game better than York, and his teams have always been winners.

But when the Falcons jumped to an early lead in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, York was cautiously optimistic saying he was more concerned with March than November.

February has arrived and BG's seemingly insurmountable lead has been whittled away by Michigan State and Western Michigan. York's fears are becoming reality, the Falcons are struggling at a time when they need to build momentum. Riding a losing streak into the CCHA playoffs is not something a team with the Joe Louis Arena jinx, such as BG, wants to do.

While WMU and MSU are starting to peak, the Falcons are skidding. York admits his team is having trouble getting the puck in the net.

"WE HAVE a lot of goal scorers but it seems everyone's in a slump," he said. "We're not capitalizing on our chances and we're giving up more goals, it's a combination of both things, we're definitely in a dry spell."

Apparently, Kruzich thinks

OSU's Miller to step down as cage boss

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - Ohio State University head basketball coach Eldon Miller on Monday agreed to step down effective at the end of the current season, with the university athletic director citing "a lack of support ... in the community" as the reason for the move.

OSU Athletic Director Rick Bay declined to say that Miller had been fired, and he said Miller would not resign.

"He came to see me this morning. He simply said it was in the best interests of the program that we begin to look for a new coach," Bay told a news conference. "But he said he was not going to resign because he did not like the word 'resign' because of the connotation relating to quitting. I told him I was not going to fire him because I did not like the word 'fire.' ... So the compromise essentially was ... that we move ahead at the end of the season."

Miller, 46, is in his 10th season at OSU and has compiled a 167-113 overall record at OSU.

Falcons topple Colonels by one

by Tom Reed

On Groundhog's Day, "Punxsutawney Phil," came out for the seventh time this century.

Last night, playing in the shadows of inconsistency, Bowling Green dug itself out of a hole midway through the second half and emerged with a 61-60 win over Eastern Kentucky in Anderson Arena.

Forward Anthony Robinson, who scored 20 points, hit a jump shot with 1:41 remaining to culminate a Falcon rally and give them a 60-58 lead. He then canned one of two free throws with 11 seconds left to ice BG's second straight victory.

The groundhogs appearance is suppose mean Spring will start in six weeks. Meanwhile, the Falcons' triumph, helps enhance their chances of still playing in the Spring.

"This win is just one more step toward the MAC (Mid-American Conference) tournament," BG coach John Weinert said. "Making that tournament (which begins in the second week of March) is

At times last night, the Falcons showed why they have a good chance of qualifying for the tourney in Rockford, Ill. But there were also moments when the Falcons looked as though they didn't deserve a bid.

BG, 7-12, 5-5, played well in the first eight minutes of the contest to grab a 20-14 lead. However, the inconsistencies which have plagued the Falcons all season re-occurred.

The Falcons stopped hustling, rebounding and scoring. This allowed the Colonels to take charge of the contest.

Led by forward Antonio Parris, who tallied 10 points in the first half, ECU closed the gap and eventually gained a 36-33 advantage at intermission.

The Falcons lethargic performance continued into the second half as the Colonels, 7-13, logged their biggest lead of the game at 52-46 with 9:28 left.

"We were just tired," Robinson said. "I sure was. Luckily some of the other guys played well to draw us to Glass and iron, but not enough twine.

Bowling Green and Western Michigan combined for 103 rebounds in their women's basketball contest Saturday, which saw the Falcons drop a 76-75 overtime decision.

BG shot just 37 percent from the field, compared to WMU's 44 percent.

"It was the first time we faced a zone defense this year, and we should have had a hey-day," BG's Rhonda Moore said. "But we couldn't hit the broadside of a barn."

The Broncos led at halftime 34-31, and kept the Falcons at an arm's length until late in the game.

BG finally tied the game with 1:15 left in regulation, when Joelyn Shoup popped in a rebound to notch the score at 62.

"Western took away our inside game and gave up the perimeter shots," BG coach Fran Voll said. "We just didn't capitalize."

"THE FUNNY thing about this game was that even though we were struggling, we were still in the game."

... Until overtime arrived. The Falcons have been in two overtime games this season, the other coming in a 79-76 loss to Ohio.

However, the Broncos jumped up quick in OT, grabbing a 70-62 lead.

"The worst part of the game was overtime," Voll said. "When we got down by eight, we didn't recover."

Jackie Motycka scored 19 points, and managed six rebounds for the Falcons. BG's freshman admitted having some trouble with the boards.

"If we would have done as good a job on the offensive boards, as we did on the defensive boards, we might have won," Motycka said. "We had to put our shots back up to score, but we didn't."

Shannon Pickel led the Bronco attack with 19 points, followed by Tracy Wells with 15.

Rebounding became as critical as baskets. Pickel, Aletta Miller and Brenda Goldner hauled down nine boards apiece for the Bronco front line.

"Last time we played, Bowling Green out rebounded us by 15," WMU coach Jim Hess said. "This time we did some things in our zone to help us get the boards."

THE FALCONS trailed most of the game, but kept battling back.

"The only thing we did right was that we kept coming back," Moore said. "We came back in overtime, and forced them to make foul shots."

"We just didn't make our foul shots."

BG usually steals from the charity stripe, taking every possible point ... but not in this one. The Broncos hit the free throws when they needed them.

WMU's Shelley Klare scored 13 points, icing the victory with a few clutch tosses in overtime.

After the loss, the Falcons (8-2) fell into a second-place tie with Central Michigan in the Mid-American Conference. Ohio stands alone in first place at 9-1.

Women swimmers split BG sunk by Miami, but drowns Oakland

by Bridget Burdno
sports reporter

Following a lackluster performance the night before, Bowling Green's women's swim team vented some frustration out on Oakland University Saturday at Cooper Pool.

Friday, the tankers found themselves struggling to keep their heads above water against Miami University and dropped a 90-50 decision to the Redskins in Oxford. The next day, the Falcons crushed Oakland 86-53.

"They came back and swam better against Oakland," BG swim coach Rich Draper said. "We just didn't perform against Miami."

The Falcons won 11 of 17 events against the Redskins.

Freshman Andrea Szekely led the onslaught with individual wins in the 200-yard freestyle and 200 individual medley. Dawn Grant also captured two individual wins for BG, in the 100 and 200 backstrokes.

"I told the girls that we fell down, now it's time to get back up and get going," Draper said. "Though, for the most part, they all came back and swam faster Saturday."

However, the lopsided loss to the Redskins on Friday was a great surprise to Draper.

"We have no excuses, we were beaten badly," Draper said. "I hope that in the long run this will prepare us for the Mid-American Conference."

"We did have a few good performances despite the loss."

Szekely captured first place in the 200 freestyle with a time of 1:55.00. She also finished first in the 200 butterfly with 2:06.50 and in the 500 freestyle with 5:00.04.

"Andrea gave a fine swim for BG this weekend, she really worked hard for us," Draper said. "She's been doing a fantastic job this whole season and she keeps getting better and better. I expect a lot out of her and she hasn't let me or the team down yet."

Annette Agee also grabbed a

Tumblers crush Crusaders

Shulman, Kosmerl lead Falcons despite oddities

by Jeff McSherry
sports reporter

Ever have one of those days when everything goes wrong? Well, according to Falcon coach Charles Simpson, the Bowling Green women's gymnastics team had one of those awful days in Friday's meet against Valparaiso.

But wait a minute . . . BG not only defeated the Crusaders, they demolished the visiting squad by a score of 171.1-151.75.

"Our goal was not to beat Valparaiso," Simpson said. "We knew they were a smaller school and we just didn't want to beat ourselves."

Crusader coach Bev Reynolds also realized the BG-VU meet was a mismatch, but conceded a number of factors which hindered her team's performance.

"We're a Division I school, but we don't give scholarships," Reynolds said. "We just don't have the same quality of program that BG has."

"We also had to get up at 5 a.m. to get here (VU is located in northwest Indiana)."

The Falcons showed no mercy for their opposition, however.

BG outscored the Crusaders in every phase of the meet - vault, uneven bars, balance beam, and floor exercise - but strange happenings were going on in Eppler North Gym.

"I'm pleased, of course, that we won," Simpson said. "But we had a lot of weird little things occur to us today."

The small oddities Simpson spoke of began very early in the meet when BG's Mary Pat Farr accidentally performed before the exhibition vaulters had finished. The peculiarities did not stop there, however.

Lisa Shulman, uncharacteristically, had a hand slip during her routine on the uneven bars which caused her to fall, thus dropping her score.

Even Simpson became a part of this strange day which surely had a blue moon glowing in the Northern skies. During Tiffany Kosmerl's vault, the coach inadvertently touched his gymnast which cost her points.

"Hopefully, we got all all of the weird things out today, so we can get back in stride," Simpson said.

The Falcons, now 2-1, did, however, have some solid performances despite the unusual events.

Shulman won the all-around competition with a score of 34.45, followed by teammate Shelley Staley (34.1), and VU's Cindy Elliot (33.75). The BG women also dominated the individual events.

Falcon victories included Shulman on the vault with a score of 8.95, Staley on both the uneven bars with an 8.75, Kos-merl on the balance beam with a 9.1, and freshman Julie Sobel on the floor exercise (9.1).

Kosmerl's outing, although limited to only two events because of injuries, was very important to the Falcons who have visions of a Mid-American Conference championship dancing in their heads.

"Tiffany did a beautiful job today," Simpson said. "She's a real competitor and we'll need her in the MAC meet. She's just got to get her confidence back and stay healthy."

Kosmerl's comeback will also ease some of the pressure placed on some of the team's younger members such as Sobel, Farr, Suzanne Bell, Julia Wickes, and Cathy Benson, according to Simpson.

"It's tough to compete week after week at the collegiate level," Simpson said. "Going to school and practice and then competing so often is especially tough on our inexperienced gymnasts."

On Friday, Feb. 7, the Falcons will face pressure when they travel to the University of Missouri to take on national-caliber teams. UM will be hosting BG, Illinois, and Oklahoma State.

first place in the 100 breaststroke with a finishing time of 1:11.06.

The Falcons' Kristen Green won the 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:31.12. Agee finished second to Green.

"Annette swam a real good race in the 100 breaststroke and Kristen was equally as good in the 200 breaststroke," Draper said.

A change in Draper's coaching philosophy may have been a reason for the 40-point loss.

"Last year in the same meet we rested for ten days and then swam against Miami and won," he said. "This year we are changing our philosophy and not taking a lot of rest before meets.

"Maybe that made the difference, or maybe we weren't mentally prepared."

But, Draper said dual meets aren't the important thing right now and that the Falcons are always preparing for the MAC meet.

"We plan our whole season towards the conference meet," he said.

Redskins bludgeon BG's men tankers

by Bridget Burdno
sports reporter

BG's men's tankers found themselves sinking under the pressure.

The pressure was applied by the Miami University Friday as the Falcons were felled by the Redskins 72-41 in a Mid-American Conference dual meet in Oxford.

"We (BG men) were thoroughly hammered by Miami this meet," BG swim coach Rich Draper said. "Maybe this will make us more hungry at the MAC meet this year."

Despite the Falcons' loss, Dane Burton captured two first places. Burton won the 200-yard freestyle with a time of 1:45.15 and the 100 freestyle with a 48.38 clocking.

Draper didn't have too many things to be happy with, but the second-year coach was pleased with Burton's effort.

"Dane gave a great performance this meet," Draper said. "Although the times were not his personal bests, he really worked for them."

Bob Walker also grabbed a first place finish for the Falcons in the 50 freestyle with a time of 22.01.

"Bob found out what he can do for the team at Miami this weekend," Draper said. "He just went out there and did his best that he could."

Winning the 200 backstroke was BG's Tim Wagner with a time of 1:29.56.

Pete Szeckly finished second in the 200 breaststroke with a time of 2:17.22.

Draper said the men might not have been mentally prepared for the meet.

"Overconfidence was the problem at this meet," he said. "The men just thought that they had the meet won before they got there."

"I'm not upset by the loss, they just have to forget about it and go on."

The Falcon's men tankers will be swimming against Kenyon Friday at Cooper Pool for a non-conference dual meet. BG travels to Ohio University Saturday for a MAC dual meet.

Falcon cagers dash past the Broncos

by Ron Fritz
assistant sports editor

KALAMAZOO, Mich. — Against Western Michigan, Bowling Green's men's basketball team did what anybody would do when lacking manpower, size and strength. They ran.

No, the Falcons didn't run off and hide, they ran the Broncos right off the court 90-82 Saturday in Mid-American Conference action at Read Fieldhouse.

WMU, starting a 6-foot-10 center and a 6-9 forward, couldn't keep up with the smaller BG lineup. The Falcons scored 40 points off the fastbreak, and, as a result, shot 56 percent from the field.

"We play better when we get out and run," BG's junior forward Jim Smith said. "Plus, when we're able to get transition baskets, it opens up our half court game."

A big reason for Falcons success in transition was rebounding. WMU outrebounded BG 40-31 for the game, but in the second half, the Falcons were outrebounded by just three.

"On paper, we are a better rebounding team, we're the best in the MAC," WMU coach Vern Payne said. "But we were outrebounded here today. BG got to the boards better than us in the second half. You can't get the running game going unless you control the boards."

Midway through the first half, though, it appeared the Broncos were going to have their way with BG, opening a 25-16 advantage.

However, the Falcons outscored WMU 12-2, including 10 points off the transition game, in the final 3:08 to take a 43-42 lead into the locker room.

Smith started BG's rally with a layup. Senior guard Brian Miller then added a layup at 2:48 and Smith drove for a bucket to cut the Broncos' lead to 40-37 with 2:13 remaining.

With 1:31 left, the Falcons' freshman Joe Gregory hit two charity tosses to make it a one-point WMU advantage. But, Broncos' guard Donald Petties added two free throws of his own.

However, junior forward Bob Nass hit a jumper and freshman forward Lamon Pippin broke free for a layup to give BG the one-point halftime lead.

"When we lost the lead in the first half, I thought that was the turning point," Payne said. "We had the lead to a point where we could've put them away, but we did just the opposite."

In the second half, Falcons' sophomore forward Anthony Robinson took over. With 12:30 left in the game, Robinson stole a pass and laid it in to give BG a 61-58 lead.

Smith added a free throw and Pippin added a layup before WMU's Hoyt Mahaley scored. Miller added two layups after receiving Robinson outlet passes to give the Falcons a 68-60 advantage.

Robinson scored 13 points, grabbed a game-high 12 rebounds and handed out five assists.

"I had to get on the boards and do the best I could against their height," Robinson said. "I let the game come to me instead of forcing things."

In addition to Robinson, Smith scored a team-high 26 points. Miller added 18 points and seven assists.

WMU was led by Petties with 29 points.

"This is as big a win as we've had all season," BG coach John Weinert said. "It's going to be a nice trip home for us."

BG raised its record to 5-5 in the MAC while WMU fell to 5-5 in the league.

Forward Jim Smith finishes off a Bowling Green fast break with a two-handed, reverse slam dunk in the Falcons' 90-82 win over Western Michigan Saturday. Smith scored 26 points to lead BG to the Mid-American Conference victory.

and the teams combined for 23 penalties, including a 10-minute misconduct on Falcon senior wing Jamie Wansbrough. "We got in trouble with the misconduct and we had to shuffle lines," York said. "It gave Chad Arthur a chance to play and he showed that he's a strong player."

Friday, BG lost a 5-2 lead en route to a 7-5 loss. Brian McKee had two goals in the losing cause.

Now riding a four-game losing streak, the Falcons are only four points ahead of Michigan State and four ahead of WMU. BG and MSU meet for a home-and-home series this weekend. York said now is as good a time as any to play the Spartans.

"Michigan State is tough no matter when you play them," York said. "We have a tremendous obstacle in that Western Michigan State are similar teams."

"Every game is critical, I want to win next weekend, but I also wanted to win tonight."

York also said that the team needs to play more like they did in the second period of Saturday's game and less like the rest of the weekend.

"In this stretch of four losses, the second period may be the best we played, but I told the team that we have to do it all the time," York said. "We have to do it for three periods, it's the lapses that hurt us."

that BG has been lulled to sleep by its early lead, something they can ill-afford to do with the title race coming down to the wire.

"We haven't had much pressure on us this season until this point. There's pressure now and we have to be able to handle it," he said. "We've just got start working harder."

The pressure certainly has come quickly. Should MSU sweep the Falcons, they would gain a tie for first place. If BG can totally turn the momentum and sweep the Spartans, the season would be all but over.

A split would keep BG in the driver's seat, although WMU would probably gain ground as they play a pathetic Miami team.

If the CCHA would crown it champion on the basis of the most talent, the Falcons would surely win the title hands down. Everyone in the CCHA knows BG can win the league title, but now the question is how bad they want it.

The MSU series could show us just that because, according to Kruzich, "the championship is now on the line."

Cagers

It was substitute forward Bob Nass who pulled the Falcons strings. His two baskets at the 7:34 mark knotted BG with ECU.

Trailing 52-48, the substitute forward connected on two straight buckets to tie the game at 52-52.

"Bobby scored just four points tonight," Weinert said. "But they sure came at a crucial time. They sparked us and helped us back into the game."

The teams exchanged baskets for the next five minutes. ECU's Lewis Spence, who notched 12 points, evened the contest for the final time with a shot to make it 58-58 at the 2:04 mark.

The Falcons took the lead for good at 60-58 when Robinson scored on a 10-foot jumper from the left baseline with 1:41 remaining.

Both Steve Martenet and Jim Smith blew opportunities to cap the victory by missing the front end of one-and-ones.

But Robinson ended the suspense when he hit a foul shot with 11 seconds left.

Robinson, who had been in season-long, has rebounded to register three straight double figure efforts. He scored 11 markers in BG's 90-82 win against Western Saturday.

Spy swap set for next week

East-West exchange includes Soviet dissident Shcharansky

BONN, West Germany (AP) - An East-West prisoner exchange will be made next week on a Berlin bridge, a Western government source said yesterday, and the word in Israel was that it includes Soviet Jewish dissident Anatoly Shcharansky.

The source in Bonn said the swap was arranged by U.S., Soviet and West German officials. Officials in Bonn and Washington refused comment on newspaper reports that such a swap was in the making, and White House spokesman Larry Speakes said: "We will have no comment, period. Top to bottom, no comment."

Israel radio said the United States had informed Israel that Shcharansky would be freed in three days as part of an East-West prisoner swap. It said the Reagan administration sent a message about the plan to Prime Minister Shimon Peres and Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir.

An Israeli official in Jerusalem, speaking privately, said the deal involved 12 prisoners held in Western countries to be exchanged for Shcharansky and perhaps one other person held by the Soviets.

SHCHARANSKY'S wife Avital was not at her Jerusalem home Monday. The radio said she would meet her husband in West Germany.

The Bonn source, who is in a position to know the details of such an exchange, said it would take place Feb. 11 on the Glienicke Bridge linking Potsdam in East Germany with West Berlin. It will involve both spies and East bloc dissidents, he said, speaking on condition that his name and nationality not be revealed.

Bild, a Hamburg newspaper, reported the exchange plan in yesterday's edition and said Shcharansky was involved. The source in Bonn would not comment on whether the Jewish dissident would be included.

Shcharansky, 37, was a leader of the Soviet human rights movement in the 1970s. He was sentenced to 13 years in prison after being convicted in 1978 on charges, which he denied, of passing intelligence to foreign countries.

Previous reports that Shcharansky might be traded for captured Soviet spies have not materialized. His family says his health has deteriorated.

Bild said Soviet bloc agents - it did not specify how many - would be exchanged for Shcharansky and 12 former Western undercover agents. The mass-circulation paper quoted "ranking Soviet sources."

THE NEW YORK Times quoted U.S. government officials, whom it did not name, in yesterday's edition as saying U.S. and Soviet officials had agreed to an exchange including Shcharansky and seven to nine other people.

Friedhelm Ost, chief West German government spokesman, refused comment at a news conference yesterday afternoon, but he indicated there might be an announcement later.

"I can neither confirm nor deny the reports," Ost said. "We don't want to say anything on this at the moment."

It said the Soviet bloc agents imprisoned in West Germany and the United States would be released to Soviet and East German authorities.

Union, groups battle budget-cutting bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - A union and two advocacy groups for the elderly opened their war on Gramm-Rudman budget cuts yesterday with a report cataloging $10 billion they said states stand to lose next year in mass transit, school, nutrition and other federal aid programs.

The report from the Service Employees International Union, the National Council of Senior Citizens and the Villers Foundation concludes that the biggest impact would be felt in five of the nation's least populous states: Alaska, Wyoming, Montana, Vermont and South Dakota.

On a per capita basis, their citizens would lose the most aid from programs run by state and local governments with funds from Washington, if cuts in federal spending for fiscal 1987 are triggered this fall under the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law, the report said.

The report looked only at cuts in domestic programs, not the military, which by law must absorb half the Gramm-Rudman cuts if Congress fails to find other ways to hold the 1987 deficit to $144 billion.

"The Gramm-Rudman process is a prescription for long-term economic deterioration, a less educated work force, lower standards of living and fewer opportunities for the less fortunate," said the study carried out for the three sponsors by Fiscal Planning Services Inc., a consulting firm that analyzes the federal budget for state and local governments, unions and other clients.

RONALD POLLACK, executive director of the Villers Foundation, a research and advocacy group for the elderly, said the report undercuts the "myths" that the poor and elderly will be spared budget cuts. Social Security, Medicaid, food stamps, Aid to Families with Dependent Children and some other social programs are exempt from Gramm-Rudman cuts.

But Pollack said in 1987 alone, the Head Start program could lose a quarter of its funds, or $278 million; nearly $1 billion could be lopped off the remedial education program for disadvantaged children; $510 million from help for the poor to heat their homes; and $729 million from training workers.

"The automatic cutbacks... will devastate the middle-class and the poor, the old and the young, residents of urban and rural areas, and will harmfully affect people in all regions," Pollack said at a news conference.

William Hutton, executive director of the National Council of Senior Citizens, denounced the budget-balancing mechanism as a "horrendous piece of legislation... a gimmick which makes computers and bureaucrats the fiscal arbiters of the direction of our nation."

Father honors astronaut daughter

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - Dr. Marvin Resnik borrowed words from his next-door neighbors yesterday to honor the memory of his astronaut daughter, Judith, who died last week in the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger.

Resnik also used the occasion of a hometown memorial service to thank those who had expressed sympathy over his daughter's death.

"There's nothing much I can say except thank you for your caring and sympathizing in our loss," Resnik told thousands of students, community well-wishers, fellow astronauts, and state and local officeholders who gathered for a memorial service at Judith Resnik's alma mater, Firestone High School.

Among the speakers was U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, a former astronaut, who said the shuttle tragedy would "turn tragedy into triumph" for the U.S. space program.

Resnik quoted from a poem by a neighbor in addressing the mourners:

"You viewed latent images - Now lased in your hearts, - While smoke trailed off in a Y, - Why...Why...Why?" Resnik read. "Gone is the Challenger, - But not the challenge."

ABOUT 20 NASA astronauts attended the service, as did about 40 members of Judith Resnik's 1966 Firestone graduating class.

Glenn said Americans will never forget the final words from Pilot Michael Smith, "Roger, go at throttle up," before the Challenger exploded in mid-air last Tuesday, killing Resnik and the six other crew members.

"These are far more than just their courageous epitaph," Glenn said. "They are America's history and they are America's destiny, and they will turn tragedy into triumph once again."

Smokeless bill approved

Warning labels required, broadcast ads banned for products

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House, faced with mounting evidence that youngsters are turning to snuff and chewing tobacco as alternatives to cigarettes, voted yesterday to require health warning labels on smokeless tobacco and to ban their broadcast advertising.

The bill, approved on a voice vote, would require one of three rotating warning labels to be added to tins and pouches: "This product may cause oral cancer," "This product may cause gum disease and tooth loss" or "This product is not a safe alternative to cigarettes."

Arrows and circles would draw attention to the warning labels. And television and radio advertising, which now often feature professional athletes touting the products, would be banned.

"The passage of this bill will allow us all to go home... and say that we've made a major step toward protecting the health of young people throughout our country," said Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., a sponsor of the bill.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce health subcommittee, said he hoped the labels would persuade teen-agers not to take up "this filthy habit." He called snuff and chewing tobacco a "very, very dangerous product."

THE BILL WAS supported, reluctantly, by most of the tobacco industry as the most palatable alternative to a myriad of state labeling requirements.

Rep. Thomas Bliley, R-Va., a tobacco industry supporter who blocked consideration of the bill last year, told the House yesterday he would not attempt to delay the bill although he still opposed it.

The Smokeless Tobacco Council, a trade organization, helped draft the compromise bill, although executive director Michael Kerrigan said the industry still believes warning labels are unwarranted.

The House vote sent the bill to the Senate, which had approved a similar bill earlier. Its chief Senate sponsors have agreed to the House version.

The congressional action came as evidence mounts that youngsters are increasingly turning to snuff and chewing tobacco. Most recently, three studies just published in the American Journal of Public Health showed growing use of smokeless tobacco by students in Arkansas, Louisiana and Pennsylvania.

Smoke alarms given to needy

TROY, Ohio (AP) - For slightly more than a week, the fire department here has been giving smoke detectors to needy homeowners, and Fire Chief Robert Counts said yesterday the program has been a big success.

"We've already put in eight dozen. We put in so many, we've already run out," Counts said.

The program began after the city council passed an ordinance Jan. 21 making smoke detectors mandatory in all dwellings. The drive for the legislation began two years ago after a fire in which three girls died because their screams did not wake a sleeping babysitter in time.

"That had a very powerful effect on my people," Counts said. "We decided then that we were going to do something... We really don't like carrying out little kids."

At the same time, he said, firefighters realized that requiring smoke detectors, especially in homes where more than one might be needed, could pose a financial hardship for some people in the city, especially senior citizens on fixed incomes and single mothers.

LOCAL CAR dealer James Taylor agreed to donate up to $2,000 to buy the detectors. Counts said his department should be able to buy about 250 of the detectors for that, and "at the rate we're going, we might have to look for some additional money."

Along with free detectors, firefighters also have volunteered time to install them properly, he said. However, apartment owners are excluded from the program because firefighters think landlords can afford the small expense per apartment, he said.

Troy is not the first city to have such a program. Richard Cross, assistant director of fire prevention in the State Fire Marshal's Office, said he knew of several central Ohio communities that have given away detectors during the past few years.

Photos of missing children now on congress' envelopes

WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. Senate printed a photograph of an Oklahoma City girl on congressional envelopes yesterday, the first such printing as part of a drive to help find missing children.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, who sponsored legislation authorizing the printing, said that each Monday the U.S. Senate Service Department will print a picture of, and information about, a different child on envelopes lawmakers use to answer constituent mail.

All envelopes for that week will display the same photo, which will be provided by the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, he said.

The center will report the number of telephone calls it receives as a result of the effort, Metzenbaum said, adding that the printing costs will be nominal.

An estimated 20 million envelopes are used by senators each year to answer constituent inquiries. Metzenbaum said he sends out about 5,000 envelopes a week through the service department.

"The other offices, I hope, in the Senate will follow the lead we have established, and indications to me are that many other offices will do just that," he said.

Under the new law, congressional and federal agencies are authorized to print such data on official mail envelopes on a voluntary basis. Some senators have already started using the pictures on newsletters.

The first picture printed on the envelopes was that of Cinda Pallett, an Oklahoma City teenager who disappeared in 1981.

"I hope that in some way our efforts in connection with this young girl may help bring her back to her family," Metzenbaum said.
